JUDGMENT AND REASONS

[1] Numerous applications for judicial review were filed challenging the constitutionality of the revocation or proposed revocation of Canadian citizenship on grounds of fraud or misrepresentation under the Citizenship Act, RSC 1985, c C-29, as amended by the Strengthening of Canadian Citizenship Act, SC 2014, c 22.

[2] The Chief Justice directed that these applications be case-managed as a group [Group 2 Revocation Judicial Review Applications]. Orders regarding the case-management of this Group have been issued under file T-1570-15.

[3] By Order dated February 23, 2016 [2016 FC 1280], as amended March 29, 2016 [the Case-Management Order], it was ordered that the three constitutional issues common to all Group 2 Revocation Judicial Review Applications [Common Legal Issues] were to be litigated on the basis of a select number of lead cases [the Lead Cases] and the remaining applications in the Group 2 Revocation Judicial Review Applications [the Remaining Applications] were to be held in abeyance by the Court, pending the final disposition of the Lead Cases on the Common Legal Issues. The Lead Cases are listed in Appendix A attached hereto, and the Remaining Applications are listed in Appendix B attached hereto.

[4] It was further ordered in paragraph 5 of the Case-Management Order that:

Provided an application included in the Group 2 Revocation Judicial Review Applications is timely, or leave to extend the time for the application is granted based on a motion for an extension of time made pursuant to Rule 369, leave for judicial review is or will be granted with respect to the Common Legal Issues.

[5] The Common Legal Issues were determined by Judgment of this Court in the eight Lead Cases on May 10, 2017, in Hassouna v Canada (Minister of Citizenship and Immigration), 2017 FC 473 [Hassouna]. That Judgment found that subsections 10(1), 10(3), and 10(4) the Citizenship Act, RSC 1985, c C-29, as amended by the Strengthening of Canadian Citizenship Act, SC 2014, c 22, are “inoperative as they violate section 2(e) of the Canadian Bill of Rights in a way that cannot be avoided by interpretation.” The other relevant paragraphs of the Judgment are as follows:

2. The Notices of Intent to Revoke the citizenship of the Applicants are null and void and hereby quashed because they violate section 2(e) of the Canadian Bill of Rights and are therefore of no force or effect;
3. The decisions rendered by the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (now the Minister of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship) respectively on December 7, 2015, November 30, 2015, and November 23, 2015 revoking the citizenship of Tareq Madanat, Hisham Ajjawi and Muhammad Shahid Bandukda are null and void and hereby quashed because they were rendered in violation of section 2(e) of the Canadian Bill of Rights and are therefore of no force or effect;
4. The Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (now the Minister of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship) or his delegate(s) are prohibited from applying subsections 10(3) and 10(4) of the Citizenship Act against the Applicants because they are inconsistent with the Canadian Bill of Rights;
5. Subsections 10(1), 10(3) and 10(4) of the Citizenship Act, as amended by the Strengthening Canadian Citizenship Act are hereby declared inoperative as they violate section 2(e) of the Canadian Bill of Rights in a way that can not be avoided by interpretation;
6. Subsections 10(1), 10(3) and 10(4) of the Citizenship Act, as amended by the Strengthening Canadian Citizenship Act do not violate sections 7 and 12 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms;

7. The effect of the present judgment is suspended for a period of 60 days or any other delay as this Court may grant at the request of one of the parties;

[6] The Judgment in Hassouna has disposed of the eight Lead Cases that were within the Group 2 Revocation Judicial Review Applications; however there are an additional 326 applications constituting the Remaining Applications that must now be dealt with.

[7] The Remaining Applications deal with a notice issued by the Respondent of intent to revoke citizenship, or a decision made to revoke citizenship pursuant to subsection 10 of the Citizenship Act, as amended by the Strengthening Canadian Citizenship Act.

[8] Many of the Remaining Applications were filed in a timely manner. They are listed in Appendix C. Some of the Remaining Applications were not filed in a timely manner and require an Order extending time. They are listed in Appendix D.

[9] The Minister has indicated that he consents to an Order issuing in each timely application listed in Appendix C, in a form similar to that which issued in Hassouna.

[10] Pursuant to the Order dated February 23, 2016, as amended, if an extension of time is granted, leave for judicial review on the Common Legal Issues is automatically granted for each such file, and the result in Hassouna will then apply to each of the Remaining Files.

[11] Although the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration has indicated that he is “amenable to allowing extensions of time limited to the group held in abeyance pending the disposition of the lead cases in Hassouna” he has also raised some concerns in so doing. Of particular concern to the Minister is existing jurisprudence that extensions of time should not be premised solely on a change in the law: R v Thomas, [1990] 1 SCR 713.

[12] It has often been stated that the following questions are relevant when deciding whether to exercise discretion and extend the time prescribed by the Federal Courts Act, RSC 1985, c F-7 (See Grewal v Canada (Minister of Employment and Immigration), [1985] 2 FC 263 (CA), Muckenheim v Canada (Employment Insurance Commission), 2008 FCA 549; Canada (Attorney General) v Larkman, 2012 FCA 207 [Larkman]):

1. Did the moving party have a continuing intention to pursue the application?
2. Is there some potential merit to the application?
3. Has the Crown been prejudiced from the delay?
4. Does the moving party have a reasonable explanation for the delay?

[13] Some of the Remaining Applications that require an extension of time contain some explanation for the delay in filing; however, others have failed to plead with any specificity the basis upon which the Court should exercise its discretion.

[14] The Federal Court of Appeal in Larkman observed at paragraph 62: “The importance of each question depends on the circumstances of each case ... not all of these four questions need be resolved in the moving party’s favour.”

[15] It may be that the fact of the Hassounsa decision alone is not sufficient to grant an Order extending time; however, one must also keep in mind the holding in Larkman, that notwithstanding the four-part test for an extension of time, “the overriding consideration is that the interests of justice be served.”

[16] There may be persons whose citizenship has been revoked for fraud or misrepresentation and who have not filed applications to review that decision. They will have to be dealt with by the Crown and the Court on a case-by-case basis, should an application be made as the process of streaming applications into Group 2 will cease with the issuance of this Order.

[17] Lastly, I am well aware of the administrative burden on the Court in requiring every applicant in need of an extension of time to file a formal motion under Rule 369 of the Federal Courts Rules, SOR/98-106 and have the Crown respond to it. Accordingly, the Court will deal with any application requiring an extension of time in the following manner:

1. Within three weeks of the date of this Order, any applicant listed in Appendix D as requiring an extension of time shall communicate to the Crown in writing (with a copy to the Court) setting out the basis on which the Court should exercise its discretion and grant an Order extending time;
2. Within six weeks of the date of this Order, the Crown shall advise the applicant and the Court whether it consents to an Order issuing extending time;
3. If the Crown consents to an Order extending time, the Court shall do so and shall issue an Order granting the application in a form similar to that which issued in Hassouna;

4. If the Crown does not consent to an Order extending time, then the applicant must forthwith bring a formal motion pursuant to Rule 369 of the Federal Courts Rules seeking an Order of the Court extending time;
5. If no Order has issued pursuant to paragraph 3 or 4 hereof within twelve weeks from the date of this Judgment, then an Order shall issue dismissing the application on the basis that it was not filed in a timely manner;

[18] These Reasons apply to each of the Remaining Cases.

JUDGMENT

THIS COURT'S JUDGMENT is that:

1. With respect to all of the applications listed in Appendix C, the following Order, listing each such application, shall issue:

ORDER

1. The application is granted;
 2. Any Notice of Intent to Revoke citizenship is null and void and hereby quashed because it violates section 2(e) of the Canadian Bill of Rights and is therefore of no force or effect; and
 3. Any decision rendered by the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration (now the Minister of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship) revoking citizenship is null and void and hereby quashed because it was rendered in violation of section 2(e) of the Canadian Bill of Rights and is therefore of no force or effect.
2. With respect to all of the applications listed in Appendix D, the following Order, listing each such application, shall issue:

ORDER

1. The Applicant requires an Order extending the time for filing this application pursuant to section 18.1(2) of the Federal Courts Act, RSC 1985, c F-6;
2. Within three weeks of the date of this Order, any applicant seeking an Order for an extension of time shall communicate to the Minister in writing (with a copy to the Court) setting out the basis on which the Court should exercise its discretion and grant an Order extending time;

3. Within six weeks of the date of this Order, and after receipt of the communication referenced above, the Minister shall advise the applicant and the Court whether he consents to an Order issuing extending time;
4. If the Minister consents to an Order extending time, the Court shall issue an Order that extends time and which will also contain paragraphs 1 to 3 of paragraph 1 of this Judgment;
5. If the Crown does not consent to an Order extending time, then the applicant who seeks an extension must forthwith bring a formal motion pursuant to Rule 369 of the Federal Courts Rules; and
6. If no Order has issued pursuant to paragraph 4 or 5 of this Order within twelve weeks from the date hereof, due to failure by the Applicant to make a timely filing, then an Order shall issue dismissing the application on the basis that it was not filed in a timely manner.

3. This Judgment applies to each of the Remaining Cases listed in Appendix B, and the Registry is directed to file a copy of this Judgment and Reasons in each of those files.
